They've been the first to cheer to your engagement and the last to leave your side during your bachelor or bachelorette party. They have put hours upon hours into making sure your big day is everything you dreamed. These are your ride or dies: your wedding party. While being a bridesmaid or groomsman is no doubt one of the greatest honors a couple can bestow upon their friends and relatives, it also comes with a lot of work, time, and responsibility (and not to mention, money). When it comes to expressing your gratitude for your wedding party, it's all about pampering them, letting them know how appreciated their friendship is to you during life's seminal moments as well as every day.

While luxury may also be synonymous with "expensive," Margaret Moraskie, CEO of luxury brand Levenger, captures the essence of luxe gift giving: "It's not about what you spend, it's about making the memory and experience last. By selecting quality, meaningful, long-lasting and personal gifts, your bridesmaids and groomsmen can fondly remember your wedding day each time they see their gift for years to come."

Here are five ideas that will make your wedding party feel like the royalty they are:

You can also couple personalized skincare gifts with an experience, says esthetician, celebrity facialist, and beauty/skincare expert, Angela Caglia: “What better way to thank your bridesmaids and groomsmen for standing by your side on your special day than to pamper them with a spa day? The Geneo Facial immediately exfoliates and oxygenates the skin offering five different types of treatments customized to their skin concerns.”
